

Audrey Clare Farley, PhD, is a scholar of American culture. She earned a PhD in English at University of Maryland, College Park, and now teaches history part-time at Mount St. Mary's University. Her first book, The Unfit Heiress: The Tragic Life and Scandalous Sterilization of Ann Cooper Hewitt, tells of a 1930s millionairess whose forced sterilization sparked a debate of eugenics. Her second book, Girls and Their Monsters: The Genain Quadruplets and the Making of Madness in America, explores the lives of the sisters behind NIMH's famous case study of schizophrenia. It was named a New York Times Editors' Pick.
